Websites for customer to fill in a form

Hi

I'm looking for website tools that allows for the following:

- Customer fills in a form
- Data is emailed to one of our sales guys
- Data also stored in a secured backend database
- The form designer to be relatively easy, so even our sales guys can understand it.

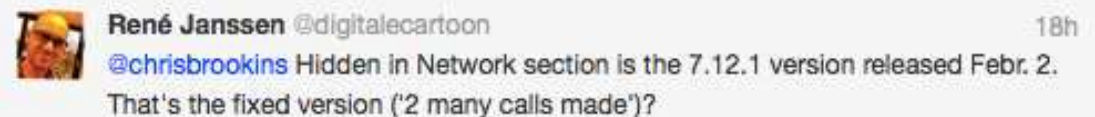

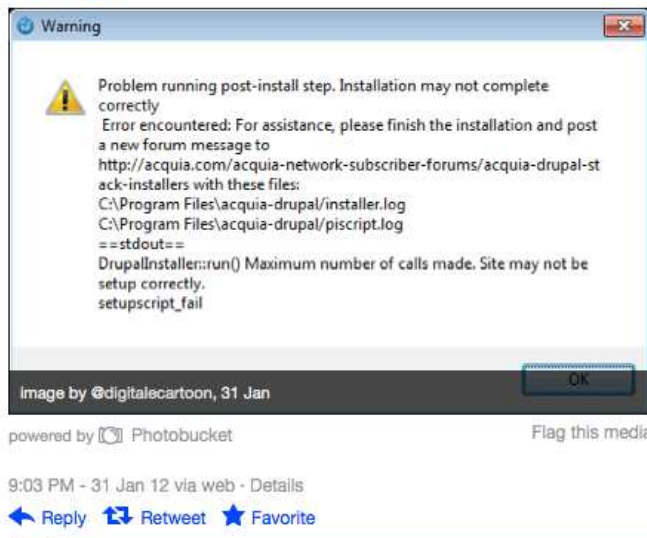

Basically, the website collects the info from the client about their business, then one of our Sales guys contacts them with a quote. The website does not calculate the pricing, it just collects the information.

This could become an IT project, but I'm thinking there must be something out there that already has these features. I'd set up the initial forms, but let any minor tweaks to the sales manager, who is relatively tech savvy.

Anyone got a recommendation?
